HON. A J, DAVEY INTERVIEWED.

Through the courtsay of the Hon. A. J. Davey we are enabled to place before our readers the exact position at this moment of the above company, whose shares have been so greatly depreciated on our local bourses since the receipt of the news of the tragic end of its late chairman.

the receipt of the news of the tragic end of its late chairman.

When this became known several sinister rumours were set afloat, and, as we stated in a previous issue, the fact that no definite news was forthcoming at that time as to whether the Socreties would eventually be losers by the catastrup he hat had led to M. Cronier's and suicide brought about the great and sudden depreciation of the shares which took place. Up to the present the company has paid regular and handseme dividends, the last being at the rate of 8 per cent, and excrying over about $2,500 to this year's account. The neb profits for the twelve months anding 31st Outberchards to the charge of the company has a work to be a series of the company and said the said was no less than LE 7-670, of fer payment of interest on the debectures and fall other charges, so that until M. Cronier's failure, the company's affairs were in a prosperous state.

initire, the company's ariairs were in a prosperous state. In reply to enquiries made by our representative, Mr. Davey said that as regards the bills for some 24 million fraces drawn on the Scarreites by the seconesion Henri Say, the company/would probably contest their validity, and the question was one for the law courts to decide. In the meanwhile the Hon. A. Davny setting in the capacity of general manager, and in the name of the company, had applied for a concordate preventif or a stay of execution, and the Commercial Chamber of the Mixed Tribonal in Cairo will meet on the 19th instant to consider the application. In the meanwhile there are sample funds in hands to meet all payments, a sum of "ap less than meet all payments, a sum of "ap less than measwille there are ample most in mante to meet all payments, a sum of—ao loss than £12,000 having been disbursed cell; two days back, which fact completely refute the adverse rumours apread that the company's coffers were empty. Monsieur dirard, the back acconstant, is bosily engaged preparing a foll and detailed statement to be presented to the presiding judge of the Commercial Chamfull and detailed statement to be presented to the presiding judge of the Commercial Cham ber on the date when the application will comup for consideration.

Until then every account as it become will be met at once in cash, and Mr. Davey has given orders that the utmost economy be practised in every department decision of the Court becomes

"Two would be unfortunate, indeed, it would be unfortunate, indeed, it would in fact be nothing less that a colamity," said Mr. Davey, "to sall the colamity," said Mr. Davey, "to suppend be under the propagate of the very good of simple manor that its your good of simple manor that its your good of simple manor that its your good of simple manor that its proper sing word in Upper Egypt. Once its factorise was closed the next comp would be prescribedly with allow. The company had onleared into a contract with the Datar, Sainche Oc, for the comply of 12 million cantars of case at P.T. 3 per knatz, to be delivered between now and March next, and this large quantity, as well as that of private individuals, would be lost." "It would be unfortunate, indeed, it would prove of the greatest value in connecting Port Said with the interior of the Delat."

In discussing the transit of beligness treesly, and in the vessels, during the war that has, just closed, Mr. Oameron states that the total Russian force that passed through the canal amounted to three hattleships, three coast defence ships, seven craiteles, selvent destroyers and seventieses transports. Very few merchantums were actually detained by their passes, and those that were detained at Sees when homesward bound, were granted extra facilities through the canal on the following day. The work of deepening the canal progresses studily, as may be shown by the increase of the maximum draught work. Till the end of 1901 this did not exceed 25 feet 7 inches. On Annary 1901, the maximum draught are raised to 8 metres (16 feet 2 inches) and on January 1 1906 it will be raised to 37 feet. On the same date the tariff for belees ships will be reduced to 7 framer 75.

well as that of private inturinatal, would be lost."

It does great credit to Mr. Davey to have temporarily withdrawn his resignation, which he had sent in before the Oronier creak coestroid, now that the company is in temporary difficulties. As regards, the resignation of Mearn. A Leroux and de la Bonglise which has been rumoured of late, nothing is yet known at the head office in Cairo. Mattre Garton de Wiatt the company's legal adviser, is expected back in a few days and it is hoped that with his advent verything will be arranged to enable the Société des Scernies to continue its career, and this hope we most sincerely endorse, as much in the interest of the shareholders as in that of the feliabene, who supply the case for the factories.

We may add that if the concordad is granty-of the shareholders as in that of the fallaheen, who supply the ones for the factories.

We may add that if the concordat is granted the names of Sir Biwin Palmer, Harari Pashs, and probably M. Dubong, a French goutleans well known in Cairo, will be sabmitted as liquidators. It would, in our opinion, be impossible to make a better choice. date the sariff for laden ships will be reduced to Transor 75 a.

The conclusions at which the author services re British shipping are very sensinatory. The percentage of British vassels using the cases has risen from 85 per cent. in 1904 to 587 per cent. in 1904, and their net tonnage from 573 per cent. in 1904 and their net tonnage from 573 per cent. in 1904 and their net tonnage from 573 per cent. in 1904 and their net tonnage from 573 per cent. in 1904 to 587 per cent. in 1904 per cent. in

THE NILE FLOOD

The condition of the Nile flood has improved distinctly in the last month, and though it cannot be regarded as a high Nile, the readings of the various gauges, which we receive, do not compare unfavorably with those of last year. In some cases higher readings are shown, whilst in others they are somewhat lower, but the difference in no instance is remarkable.

OLIVE-OIL INDUSTRY.

The dive-tree is believed to be an Asia Minor and Syria, and thence to have been introduced in very remote times to Egypt and Greece, and before 600 n.c. to Italy, becoming Greece, and before 600 sic. to Italy, becoming throughly naturalised in the latter country and in the Spanish peninsula. The Mediterranean region long held in the clive-cil trade a position of predominance, which may be to a large extent cooping in the future by the Cape and Australasia. In this as in other fruit-oil industries, princitive appliances suffice to perform the simple operation of expressing the oil from the fruit-poly, and therefore the business is not beyond the powers of small proprietors. Seed-oil the powers of small proprietors. Seed-oi industries, on the contrary, have a tendency to fall exclusively into the hands of owners of large oil factories, since powerful. machinery is necessary for the expression of oil from seeds. Owners of small olive groves sometimes co-operate in working a factory in common; but operate in working a fac ost of them still prefer to go on working their own little "olleries."

In connection with the development of the olive-oil industry in British Golonies, a manual recently written by M. Dugast, and published, by Gauthier Villars of Paris, dealing with olive ontitivation as practised in the countries of conthern Europe and Adries, is of importance.

and "lattic Chemial" there is soon.

As regards form, some olives, such as the "Mannailla," one of the most widely-colivated varieties in Spain, are almost spherical; but the majority, including the "Limi," which comes from Tiences in Algaria, are olong; while a few are long and narrow. The "Port National," one of the latter group, is pointed. In some varieties the surface of the stone is semoch, in others regones in all the pulp, even when fully ripe, adheres closely to the stone, the residue and olicake made from it being smooth, in other regoes. In all, the pulp, even when fully rip oil noil.

Little is known as to the physiological processes occurring in the interior of the fruit and leaves, the principal result of these processes begin the acoum vision of oil. The fruit matures slowly, taking about ten months to ripen. When ouring is to contain schlorophyll, tannin, and abundance of starch; as it ripens, blorophyll and actabolydrates diapspear, and oil gradually accumulates in the form of oil-drops in the cells-of the krone land the pulp. The quantity of oil, both in the kernel and in the pulp, attains a maximum as the fruit matures, and these sold start in the sold decreases and that of saterated soids. Increases during ripening, so that oil pisaled by immature olives contains comparatively little soil fat. In diseased and injured oilves the proportion of soil fat is higher. Other things being qual, the quantity of oil is higher in the pulpy varieties than in those with large stones. The proportion of oil in the fruit varies from 1 to 9 per ont in the case of the wild olive in the fresh state, and from 21 to 28 per cent, in the fluid proposed to the dry state. Decision as to whether it is best to extract the oil or to use the oliven to make a preserve, largely depends upon the variety. The "Werdale" variety is useful as a good oil. The "Picholine" and "Luco" are needed to be a preserve, but yields an oil oil inferior quality. The "Wirtlade" variety is useful as good oil. The only way in which first quality of clive oil can be obtained is by extracting the oil
from the fruit immediately after picking.
Unfortunately it is not always possible to do or if the crop is a beavy one. The factories which boy the olives to make oil generally cannot get them as fread or a regularly as they wish. Under such circumstances provision has to be made for storing the oilves. Soon after picking, fermentation tends to set in, causing the oil to become racind. One method of storing is to spread the oilves occor

Asy the oilves deteriorate. Another method satisfactory, and if left more than eight or to is to keep the olives in water, the water being constantly renewed. This entails some loss of constantly renewed. This entails some loss of oil. Better results seem to be obtained in Algeria by putting them into boiling water. Another method is to put the olives into toba and crush them until the surface is covered with a coating of oil which serves to protect the oilves beneath. Another method consists the dives beseath. Another neethed consists in asking the olives and drawing off the brine. They can be kept in that way for a month, but not more. The method recommended asprobably the best consists in salting said leaving the olives bathed in the brine, in which they may be kept for five months. There is an apparent lose of some of the oil, about 9 per cont. being drawn off by the sait. This oil, however, is recoverable from the brine, and is of fairly good quality. Oil extracted from stored fruit is stated never to be so good as that extracted from frees fruit.

FACTS YOU OUGHT TO KNOW.

The liver and stomach work harmoniously together, to change the food we eat into blood bone, and tissue. The stomach supplies the gastric pincs which digests the albuminous par of our food, and the bile from the liver com pletes the process of digestion by acting or oils and fats. The digested food is then re for conversion into pure, rich blood. "GLOBE."

"He course" The Emperor of Japan has given the world a leason in moderation and, as we believe the result will show, in practical wisdom. The greatest conquerors in history have failed because they did not know where to passe: the example of Napoleon can never be for-gotten. The war was originally undertaken by Japan because her very fature expansion and her national cristence were endangered. Far more than that has been achieved: her rival has been humilisted in the dust.

The "Novos Vennya" discussing the Peace Agreement, while not accounting the Government of betraying the country, describes the news as a great national sorrow. Russis, the journal -says, most now devote benefit to political and material renovation. Her disconstiture is the result of faults of government, the condition of society, and the inefficiency of her diplomacy, and of her military and naval departments. Many years, the "Novoe Vronya" adds, will be required for Russis to regain the position which she has lost, largely through aid, openly or secretly, given to Japan.

MATTERS OF MOMENT.

PITH OF THE PRESS COMMENTS.

(FROM A CORRESPONDENT.)

THE WORLD'S PRESS ON THE TREATY. "TIMES."

To the moderation and the magnanimity of Japan this great result is, in the first place, due. After eighteen months of unbroken triumph by sea and land, she has obtained, in a form which she holds to be satisfactory, the a form which the holds to be satisfactory, the objects for which she went to war. She has secured her own future safety and her rightful hergemony in the Par East, the has secomplished the liberation of Korea and of China from "y usin accendincy, and the has arrested and lattled for a generation to come all his rad-versary's designs of aggression and of domina-tion. With the attainment of these solid and enderlying advantages her statemen have reached to be content. In order to gain them substant further the content is of the second of the substant further the content to gain them It is too soon to speak of the major issue that are settled by the war which is now concluded. Today Japan is beyond question the dominant Fower in the Far East She has destroyed the military and naval prestige of Runais throughout that portion of the world, and built up her own ints stead. She has the gratification of knowing that her gains are assered to her, not morely by the prowas of her own saliors and soldiers, but by the renewal and extension of her dose relations of allied friendship with the greatest naval Power in the world. The conectionances of that fact contributed, we doubt not, to the generous moderation she has shown.

"TELEGRAPH."

"The world will receive with unfeigned astisfaction the glad news that, after all, the Conference at Portsmooth has been successful, and the devastating war in the Par East has come to an end. The optimists have turned out to be right. Their faith has been justified by event, even though the manner of justification in other than what they apported. Very few, at any rate in England, believed that Japan would give way on the question of the indemnity. . . . So it is the outspected which has happened, and instead of the Geomatic being bidden to searches again to the God of War, there is the sadde a radiance of peace. Probably the first thought of svery one on hearing the good news will be gratitude to President Roosevelt, and admiration of the tast and strength of purpose which he has displayed in conducting the Conference to a successful end.

Whatever is said or done, he (Mr. Roosevlet) is the great conqueror in this combat of giants, and the gallant and obstinate fight which he a'one, in the civilised world, has made for the triumph of the cause of peace, is the most admirable teat of arms of which a people can be proud.

"LIBRE PAROLE."

From whatever point of view it is regarded, the peace which has resulted from the Ports-mouth conference constitutes a success for Rusia, e-pecially after a such a disastrous war.

THE "GAULOIS." The success is due in great part to the necessity in which Japan found herself of concluding peace. The Japanese concessions offer elequent proof of this. It is also due to the generous response which the urgent appeal of President Rocsevelt elicited from the Tsar.

THE "LANTERNE"

The loss of Manchuria and a part of Saghalien injures the prestige of the Taiz, but in no way weakens the Russian sation. On the other hand, the liberties which the shaken antocracy has been obliged to concede the people in insurrection constitute an inap-preciable advantage for Russia. Many honors have been won by the Japa-nese since they threw down the gage to Rossia a year and a half ago, but no victory they have gained by land or sea will stand to their credit

Such magnanimity does more for the peace of the world than the disquisitions of certain to congratulate himself in the success of his diplomacy. He has "saved the face" of the Tear. noisy sophists we could point to, or the re sounding elequence of certain orators.

THE "RÉPUBLIQUE FRANCAISE."

The public of both worlds has saluted unanimous gratitude the noble initiative of the First Magistrate of the United States.

"Makulisteria Guardian."
The terms of peace are, so far as far as they go, a slear gain to those Powers whose interests in China are mainly commercial. Utilinately they will find in Japan a more formidable rival in the Far Eastern markets than they have yet met; but if they lose, it will be through the sperior akill and energy of their rivals, and not through unfair political advantage, and they will have no just ground of complaint leavainst others. If the world is capable of doing even a little justice, it will not have praises enough to signalize and proclaim the wise tranquility and the perspicacious sang-froid of the Tast Nicholas II. The agreement arrived at without a rop-ture, can only mean great concessions made by our Plenipotentiaries. Peace concluded on such terms can never satisfy the nation. "Porty Papertry"

The friends of peace will everywhere hail with delight the glad news. The date of the agreement will be a memorable one, marking, as it does, the ending of the bloodiest and most reinous war that has ever afflicted humanity.

We do not know who is really responsible for the publication of the Carzon-Kitcheser correspondence, but we cannot help asying that no desire for personal vindication can justify the course which has been taken. When Wicer to give the publication of the Carzon with the saving that no desire for personal vindication can justify the course which has been taken. When Wicer to give the publication and provided the provided that the saving and Commander in Chief find it necessary to bandy such recriminations with one active to give the world an opportunity of gaping at their onescently activately. The incident is an almost precise repetition of that onfortunate outpowersy leiveen Lord Dalbonais and Sir Charles Napier, which was so injurions to two great reputations; and we very much fear that the results of that controversy will be desired to the provided that the results of that controversy will be desired to the provided the provided that the results of that controversy will be desired to the provided the provided that the place of the provided that the provided that

The contemplated re-entry of Lord Curzon into the House of Commons will mark the fact that Citve, on his second return from India, was raised to the Irinh Penerge and was returned to the House of Commons in 1761, when he attached himself to the King's friends. Lord Macaulty, quoting from some suppolitable of mannins of Honsee Walpole, asy the town was convalsed by the grancherie of Citre's fethers at a leven beld by Gongo III. The King shead him where Lord Citve was. "He will be in town very score," said the old gentlemes, lood nough to be heard by the whole circle, "and then your Majesty will have another vote." Another Governou-General of India was the recipient of a signal compliment from a House of Commons, whose preleaseson had impeach—at him at the Bir of the Lords for high crimes and misdemessours. In 1813, Warnes Hastings, seven-and-twenty person after his impace, in the common to be examined as a witness with reference to a received of the best for the East India Company. The Commons received him with scalamation, ordered a chair to be set for him, and when he referred, rose and unoverend. He was received by the Lords with similar tokus of respect.

OUR LONDON LETTER

(From OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

London, September 1.

We do not know who is really responsible for the publication of the Carzon-Kitchener correspondence, but we cannot halp saying that no desire for personal vindication can justify the corres which has been taken. When Vice ty and Commander-in-Chief find it necessary to bandy such recriminations with one as-other they should at least do so within the corres which has been taken. When Vice ty and Commander-in-Chief find it necessary to bandy such recriminations with one as-other they should at least do so within the covers of condential memorands, and ought not to give the world an opportunity of gaping at their anseemly acrimour. The incident is an almost precise repetition of that unfortunate confourable viewen Lord Dablosuis and Sir

Mr. Thomas Milvain, K.C., M.P., who has been appointed Judge Advocate-General, is sixty-one years of age. He was educated at Darham School and at Trinity Hall Called to the Bar in 1869, be took silk nineteen years later, and ansheapenaty became a Bencher of the Middle Temple. Thirteen years ago he was appointed Recorder of Braidford and Chancellor of the County Palatine of Darham, the was a Unionist in politics, and natered Parliament as member for the Gity of Durham in 1855. In 1892 he lost his sext, and later unsuccessfully contested the Cockermonth Division and Maidstone. In 1909, however, on the retirement of Mr. E. B. Hoare, he was elected as member for Hampstead.

Signor Tawagno, whose death o curred yes terday at his villa on Lake Lugano, was probably, the first Othello who has become s millionaire. That, no doubt, is because he was mont, was ordered to attend at the Bur of the indisonaire. That, no doubt, is because he was House of Commons to be examined as a with reference to a renewal of the charter of the Eust India Company. The Commons received him with acolamation, ordered a chair to be set for him, and when he retired, rose and uneversel. He was received by the Lords and uneversel. He was received by the Lords with similar tokens of respect.

To-day the Postmarter-General takes over the telephones, and it is to be hoped that we shall find them less unique as an examplessing invention of this too reientified ages. It seems there is hope of that. The Post Office has a superpolar over the bridge, and, suddenly, sat down. His pursuer followed close upon him and hs sat down. Pinally, the heroine, imper sonated by the lovely Miss Herbert, came or in her turn and she sat down. After that, the curbain had to come down, also.

If anyme had toold Sir Norman Lockyer fifty years ago that he would be leading a British eclipse expedition in 1905, the statement would probably have been received with derision. Sir Norman was not "bred up in the business," like the younger herselfel. He started life as a Wax office clerk, edited Army Regulations, and acted as accretary to the Duke of Devonshire's Royal Commission on Science. The chance bearing of a lecture on attonomy turned his attention to a study which has sirce become the absorbing passion of his life. He had a little observatory at Hampirsed, and here he watched the stars in their courses, and added many a choice item to autonomic lore.

For a generation or more he has studied the "sun-spot cycle" in its influence on Indian weather, and with spoolal reference to drought and consequent famine. Wisearce reject the ides of a connection between the two, but Sir Norman is always ready with the happy restort that Faraday toyed with a needle and gave us the electric telegraph. Perhaps, with that one up of his—for Sir Norman has had the misfortune to less the sight of the other—he may be trusted to see farther into the scientific future than his critics, area if they possessed

Princes come and Viceroys go, but there is always scardity in India. In one province or another the monsoon fails, and a population living from hand to month by leave of the moneylenders finds itself reduced to famina. This year's reports are serious as regards North Rypetans and the adjoining areas of Agras and the Punjab. Indeed, there has been practically no rain for a month throughout the plains of North-West India, which irrigation will not save, unless September brings a delaye. We have to be thankful merely that this is not an exosptionally black prospect. In one sense it is regretable in the year of a Royal visit; but the Prince of Wales will at least to deeply interested in the great works of amelioration, temporary and permixent, which it is our pride to carry out wherever the British Raj prevails. The extent of these is coron-me in a measure which only abtual to only actual to the coron-me in a measure which only a study only actual to the coron-me in a measure which only a study only actual to the coron-me in a measure which only a study only actual to the coron-me in a measure which only a study only actual to the coron-me in a measure which only a study only actual to the coron-me in a measure which only a study only actual to the coron-me in a measure which only a study on the coron-me in a measure which only a study only actual to the coron-me in a measure which only a study only actual to the coron-me in a measure which only a study only actual to the coron-me in the British Raj prevails. The extent of these is coron-usi a measure which only sixtal knowledge of the country enablesons to realize wall. They are far from being yet complete, but, at all events, famine does not take us by surprise, as it did to recently. India's future problem will not be famine, but over-oppula-tion. With that too, we shall have to one, in the main by simple engineering enterprise.

tion. With that, too, we shall have to cype, in the main by simple conjuncting cotterptias.

The two sons of Mr. Heary Phipps, of Pittsburg, who shot a body of keepers at Beanfort Castle in mittake for salmon poodbers, were fortunate yesterday in being tried by a jury disposal not to enforce the letter of the law. This, in the United Kingdom, multise nobody to shoot at either postders, pickpeckets, or an experiment of the property of the property of the control of th oarried on with such vigour in the "Daily Telegraph." As is mand in such cases, the Correspondence, though of interest to read, is, for the most part, quite beside the mark. It is really of very little consequence what St. Paul's supposed to have said to a society constituted very differently from our; it is really a matter of seamlines and good teats. It is the well understood oustom that women should have their heads overed in church, and to omit to cusform to the rule is as improper as it would be for a man to enter a church with his hat on, or for any one to enter a mongue with his boots on. There are certain rules of decent behaviour which should be observed by overyone, but unfortunately, nowadays, there are a good many people who mittake ill-manners for independence, and who imagine that the rude they are, the more they prove their freedom from conventionality. This tendency shows itself everywhere nowadays, but more especially in chur hos, because a certain class of mind takes a delight in trying to shoot the beliefs of others. It is not a question of Otherch History or of St. Paul's Episiale, so much as of the ordinary decencies of society. None but the thoroughly ill-bred would offeed in this manner.

After the Beok case, and with recollections of other blunders in their minds, many people wowed never again to pin their conditance to identification by women. They will be confirmed in their mixtural by the remarkable case at Willeden yesterday, in which a respectable married woman, of middle age, was charged with forging and uttering two Savings Bank yescipts at Hatleden poot dime on Angest 13. It was found that she bore an irreproachable character, and was ill in bed throughout the day in question, and therefore was manifestly innocent. Yet seven witcosses from the post character, and was ill in bed throughout the day in question, and therefore was manifestly innocent. Yet seven witcosses from the post of the proposed of the control of police court identification inevitably encourage and tist to be feared that the methods of police court identification inevitably encourage and tendencies. The wites a start with the idea that the person whom she is wanted to identify is almost certainly present, ad therefore is likely to pick out with conviction asybody who more or less resemble that person from the company present, although abs would awere have "recognised" him or her in a cassal meeting in the street. And the suspected person, of course, is only to likely to be given away by signs of trepidation. These identifications are much less like evidence than they seem. Blackpool, we read, is apparently smitten with the "no hat" erase, and an enormous number of visitors have left off wearing any headgear at all. There is a good deal to be raid in favor of this practice, as there is no doubt that mech of the premature haldness no prevalent at" but present time is due to the wearing of badly-ventils's of hats and caps. However, it is also stated that hundreds of ladies are to be seen walking about the toruw with barn field, and this custom appears to excite no comment at all. If these ladies were only aware of the danger they run from this practice, they would on-tainly discontinue it, as nothing more seally leads to lockjaw or blood-poisoning than ear on the foot. If the idea is to beautify the shape of the feet, the wearing of anadals is just a efficacious, without any of the dangers.

Controversy as to the real existence of the Doones of Exmoor is not yet dead. Two years ago, a Mr. Rawle published a bookiet called "The Doones of Exmoor," in which it was contended that the "doones" ware "dance."

of them, and when the Doones took off their sheep there was a great fight, and John R d bat the Doones and killed the biggest of them. That was always the talk. Some said as Rid and Red were all the same mans, and there were Rids of Osra, but the old talk was always about the Reds. There were two families of them long ago in two farms above Colhons. There was only one good Doons, and she were a woman called Lorna. John Red married hr when she was the only Doone shift; so there is a bit of Doone blood in the Reds yet."

in the days of King Alfred. The conclusion was that Mr. Blackmore had evolved John Ridd, Lorna Doone, and the rest of them from his inner consciousness. But now Mr. J. Charles Cox has been investigating local traditions, and supplies to the "Athenourn" an interesting article on the linguring memories of the fances family. John Pollard, of Pollock Weir, for example, a fisherman of eighty-six, was quite contemptations at the idea of not having heard of the Doones of Emmoor until agentleman had written a big book about them:—
"Had he ever heard of them fighting any one! Oh, yes; pity, the Reds of Culbons parish evers strong lot, and there were many of them, and when the Doones took off their sheep there was a great fight, and John R. discussed the strength of the properties of t

One of the larger reviews is lucky this month in securing a paper on the "origin of life," from the pen of the man who has been instrumental in turning our thoughts to it of late. Mr. Butler Burks, we may say, by say of amplifying what has been said already, graduated at Tenint's College, Dublin, in 1893, and took his M.A. four years later. He matriculate at Cambridge in 1893, and took his man to the same at the same and took his degree socording to the new regulations for advanced stadents. This is interesting, as explaining his exact relations with the University— a chapter of his career which has punted more than one of his biographers. Mr. Berks, before going to Colmering, was Lecture at Birmingham and a Fellow of Owens College, Macchester. He was in residence six years altogether, and worked as a research student at the fanous Cavendin Laboratory, so worthly presided over by Professor J. J. Thomson, the fitting successor of Gard Rayleigh and Clark Maxwell in the chair of Experimental Physics Mr. Barks, (innay be added, innow working privately and independently at Cambridge, and he neither teaches not lecture, but is well-known up and down the country in the latter causely. He is in fact, in the accomment. A DVERTISING AGENTS.—The best public Advertising sites in Alexandria belong to G. Vestri & Co., Advr. Agents, B. Casharnes Square.
